The Military Committee of the House, it is asserted, will refuse to report a bill for the increase of the United States Army.

We have a brief synopsis of the proceedings in Congress yesterday, and later news from Cuba, which will be found under the telegraph head.

A set of counterfeits was discovered here yesterday morning, and two of the operators captured, together with their apparatus and a quantity of bogus money.

Our commercial reports this morning, present no features of special importance save that pork is still on the decline.

Arrangement of the Senate Committee.

There is no North who wonder how it is that the South, in the minority, is both Houses of Congress, the inferior of the North in population, wealth and intelligence, manages to control the legislation of the country, and the will of the people. The committees are arranged, and learn one chapter in the disreputable history. These committees are chosen by the Senate after having been made out in Democratic causes. The Senate consists of 54 members—24 from the Free and 30 from the Slave States. The Free States, it is said, should be the predominance due to its numbers to say nothing of its wealth, industry and population. But what are the facts? Of the 32 committees just organized, the South takes the chairmen of 14, and these virtually have all important legislation under their control.

Mr. Motley, of Foreign Relations. Mr. Hunter, of Va., Finance. Virginia claims to be the person of her two Senators two of the most important places, and the cringing Northern Delegates subdue.

Mr. Clay, of Ala., Commerce. Mr. Clay's ideas of Commerce are bound by the trade in negroes; he is a blustering, vulgar, uncouth specimen of the genus Democrat; but is sound on the goos, is a red-hot filibuster; and of course is promoted. His committee is one of the most prominent and important in the Senate.

Mr. Davis, of Miss., Military Affairs. The South again in the person of a disunionist and filibuster.

Mr. Motley, of Fla., Naval Affairs. The South again in control of legislation affecting the Navy.

Mr. Yulee, of Fla., Post Office and Post Roads. Who ever heard of Mr. Yulee as a man of ability? Who ever heard of him at all, except in the lists of acts and days? Does he not own slaves?

Mr. Green, of Mo., Territories. Who Mr. Green is and how he was put at the head of that committee by the degradation of Douglass, the South again in the person of a disunionist and filibuster.
